Male Voice Choir (for Margaret we enjoyed doing this when I was choosing)

I hope you are all keeping safe and well this week. More snow was a lovely surprise for the girls and we enjoyed both the winter walks and the warming up again by the fire with toasted marshmallows.

Tom and I have been extra busy at work this week and we are very lucky the girls are so good supporting themselves with their home learning as much as possible and also looking after each other and doing jobs around the house. They have cooked dinner and also learned to make Scotch eggs (a treat if you are gluten free and can't buy them in the shops).

Spare time this week has been used designing a new board game, the first trial of which we played tonight. It needs a few minor amendments but we may be on to something ha ha! With live shows still out of bounds we have also enjoyed streaming some live theatre and comedy performances. We recommend Mischief Comedy (the creators of the play that went wrong etc.) who do interactive live performances online of improvised plays which you can help write in real time along with them. We joined one with over 7000 people worldwide and it was a fantastic way to spend an evening.

We are of course thinking of you all and hope you enjoy the cheerful music selections this week. Good for lifting the spirits and shining a light in this darkest of times.

Sending lots of love

Sarah, Tom, Emily and Phoebe xxxx
