We have had a different week again with Emily home schooling once more as unfortunately high case numbers mean their year has been sent home. Phoebe however is still in school and after a deep clean of their building over a 3 day weekend (which we have all enjoyed) we are hoping to have both girls back next week. It's been nice from my point of view to have some company while I work from home and we have made the best of lockdown by going back to baking and watching films in the evenings. The girls have been introduced to Karate Kid and Labyrinth and other movie classics from when Tom and I were young

Tomorrow we hope to plant out winter pansies and update our hanging baskets for colder weather.

Thinking of you all and hoping to see you soon.

Love

Sarah and family xxxx
