We are back from our holiday and feeling refreshed this week. The girls are making preparations for a phased return to school over the next few weeks.....something that will feel very strange this year I think for children, teachers and parents alike! We have a combination of homeschooling and reduced hours in school to get to grips with but before that we have enjoyed the last few sunny days in the garden, Tom and I have made the most of not being at work until Monday, and Phoebe has celebrated her 11th birthday

I look forward to seeing some of you at Merevale at 11.00am tomorrow and I send love and best wishes to all.
