We hope you all had a good week. In our house were getting used to new routines again as Phoebe returned to school on Wednesday. She has enjoyed being back with her friends, all be it in reduced numbers and socially distanced, and has particularly enjoyed the fact that they have swapped indoor lessons for outdoor activities such as pond clearing and gardening on the school grounds. Emily is missing her sister being at home but also enjoying having time to herself more and also having all of the cat cuddles to herself in the day

This week we are looking for reading suggestions please.....nothing too heavy but a good story for the adults and (pre) teenagers to enjoy? Phoebe has just finished the Hunger Games so enjoying adventure stories and Emily very much likes Agatha Christie (especially Poirot) so any murder mystery series you can suggest would be gratefully received

As always we are thinking of you all and sending thoughts, prayers and good wishes. Especially to those who are ill at this time.

Lots of Love and hope to see you soon
Sarah and the family xxxx
